Returning structural components and building contents to their natural moisture content is extremely important to prevent damage from excessive moisture and to inhibit mold and mildew growth, which in turn safeguards indoor air quality and health. We follow specific CEILINGPRO guidelines that meet or exceed industry standards. The antimicrobial agents that we apply are registered by the EPA to disinfect a broad spectrum of microorganisms. These treatments, however, will not provide long-term prevention of mold and bacteria growth if the moisture content of materials is not reduced to and maintained at natural moisture/humidity levels. In addition to damage from mold and bacteria growth, excessive moisture and humidity will also physically damage most structural materials and content items

We have been asked to remove dehumidification and drying equipment from the Customer address specified above. In our professional opinion, moisture and humidity levels, as indicated below, have not been sufficiently reduced to warrant the removal of dehumidification and drying equipment at this time. We have informed the Customer/Insurance Company Representative of our opinion.

The undersigned acknowledge that they have been advised about the possible consequences of early removal of the dehumidification/drying equipment. The undersigned hereby release and agree, to the maximum extent permitted by law, to hold harmless the CEILINGPRO Franchisee and/or any of its affiliates, subsidiaries, successors, heirs, agents, attorneys, representatives, directors, shareholders, officers, partners, parent and subsidiary companies, employees, consultants, insurers, other CEILINGPRO Company, CEILINGPRO general distributor trainers, CEILINGPRO director distributor trainers, administrators and other related persons, firms, corporations, associations, partnerships, and business entities, including CEILINGPRO Industries, Inc., from any and all existing, future, known, unknown, contingent or certain claims, actions, losses, lawsuits, obligations, deficiencies, liabilities, penalties, demands, rights, damages, costs, expenses, including but not limited to reasonable attorney's fees, arising directly or indirectly out of the services performed by the CEILINGPRO company.
